STUDY OF CANCER

Cancer if discovered early and treated immediately, is a curable disease. Moreover, if certain very definite conditions which are now known to precede cancer are avoided or cured, the disease may be prevented. Why then does the thought of this disease arouse so much dread? Probably because surgical and other forms of treatment are seen to fail in case after case. This only too common experience has created an atmosphere of despair and a sense of fatalism about cancer which is hard to overcome. The fact is that cancer like tuberculosis may be cured when discovered and treated early enough, but unfortunately its early signs are usually so painless and so trivial that neglect of the danger is only too easy.

Two things are required if the unnecessary sacrifice of life to this ancient enemy of the human race is to be prevented:

First, People must know the danger signals and recognize their significance in time.

Second—There must be widespread understanding of the hopeful message of modern science, "that any case of cancer in the early stages is curable."

Cancer at the beginning is usually painless and its onset for this reason is especially insidious and dangerous.

Cancer is at first a small local growth, which can be safely and easily removed.

Cancer is not a blood disease.

Cancer is not contagious.

Cancer is, practically speaking, not hereditary.

Every lump in the breast should be examined by a competent doctor. Persistent abnormal discharges or bleeding is suspicious. Sores, cracks, lacerations, lumps and ulcers which do not heal and warts, moles or birthmarks which change in color, size or appearance, may turn into cancer unless treated and cured.

Probably 60 per cent of cancers of the rectum are first treated as piles. Insist on a thorough examination.

A doctor who treats a suspicious symptom without making a thorough examination does not know his business.

Onkaway County Public Health Nurse

104 YEARS TOO LATE

New York World.

The Hon. Bourke Cockran, Representative in congress from New York has introduced a resolution which sets forth that "any attempt to affect or control the extent of our armed forces by land and sea by treaty is an invasion and breach" of the powers of congress. Mr. Cockran is stirred to this patriotic act by the five-power naval treaty just drawn in Washington.

If Mr. Cockran will turn to page 630 of Malloy's "Treaties, Conventions, International Acts," &c. prepared by direction of senate, he will find a proclamation by President James Monroe, dated April 28, 1818, of an agreement with Great Britain, signed and ratified, limiting the naval force of each power on the lakes to four vessels not exceeding 100 tons burden and armed with one eighteen-pound cannon. This is the famous agreement that for a century has stood in the way of the folly of fringing forts and bristling armadas on the long line between a friendly Canada and the United States.

One cannot but admire Mr. Cockran's zeal for the "powers of this house as a branch of said congress." Unfortunately he comes too late. The mischief is done. The fatal precedent was set by the president and senate 103 years, nine months and six days ago—and they never even asked the consent of the house of representatives, much less did they consult Burke Cockran.

EXPERIENCED

A Japanese "boy" came to the home of a minister in Los Angeles recently and applied for a position. New it happened that the household was already well supplied with servants, so the minister's wife said, "I am sorry, but we really haven't enough work to keep another boy busy."

"Madame," said the Oriental politely, "I am sure that you must have. You may not know what a little bit of work it takes to keep me employed."—Christian Register.

NECESSARY PRELIMINARY A recent experience of a Virginia clergyman throws light on the old English law requiring that marriages should be celebrated before noon. A colored couple appeared before him, asking to be married, the man in a considerably muddled state. The minister said to the woman, "I won't perform this ceremony."

"Why is that, boss?" she queried. "Ain't de liceses all right? An' we is of age."

"Yes but the man is drunk. Take him away and come back again." Several days later the couple again presented themselves, the man more obviously intoxicated. "See here, I told you I wouldn't marry you when this man was drunk," the minister said testily. "Don't you come back here till he's sober."

"Well, you see, sah," the woman replied apologetically, "de trufe is dat he won't come less'n he's lit up."
